Falls Soldier, Missing, Dies in Jap Prison Camp

Private First Class Harold Chateaubriand was a survivor of Batang Desh March. A victim of the infamous Batang Desh March and missing in action since May 4, 1945, Private First Class Harold Chateaubriand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eras Chateaubriand, in Belford, N.J., was killed in a Japanese prison camp on April 10, 1945. It was learned this week from the War Department.

While details of young Chateaubriand's death were not given in the War Department's telegram to his parents, it is known that he had been interned a month before he was listed as missing came as an added shock to his family. He was no less a future soldier, and his death leaves hope for the parents that another son may be a hero in the Air Force. His absence was reported to the Air Force in 1943 and, in 1945, when his supposed 'death' by the Japanese came as a shock to his family, the Air Force was notified. He had been in the service since August 1941.

Mr. and Mrs. Chateaubriand are the parents of two sons in the service, one of whom is a pilot in the Navy.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his sister, Mrs. Robert Stein, of Belford, and his brother, Lt. Robert Stein, of the Air Force. Mr. and Mrs. Chateaubriand have another son, who is a student at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Chateaubriand have another son, who is a student at the University of Pennsylvania.
